Clue May Link A Second Person

Telephone Call on Night of Hammer Murder May Link a Second Person With the Crime—Cowan Had Received Threatening Letters.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Elizabeth, N. Y., Nov. 7.—A hammer and a pair of heavy socks caked with mud—these were the most tangible clues the authorities had to work upon today in their efforts to solve the mysterious murder of William J. Clark, who was beaten to death with a hammer in the garage at his home in Hillside, N. J., shortly after midnight last Monday night. While the investigation was going forward, police of Hillside revealed that Cowan had received letters threatening his life because of his attachment for Mrs. Clark, and that friends had sworn to "get" him.

What may be an important clue developed during the forenoon. It was learned that detectives from Prosecutor David's office were investigating a reported telephone call last Monday night, the night of the murder, which instructed Clark to go out to the garage where he was struck down.

This clue may link a second person with the crime, police intimated. A woman is understood to have given this clue to the police.

Mrs. Priscilla Kent Clark, the pretty widow of the slain man, who was taken into custody and then released on bail after questioning at the hands of the county prosecutor, reiterated this morning that she did not know who killed her husband and at the same time denied that she had had a dual life with Joseph Cowan, a married man and her alleged admirer.

Cowan is being held in jail in connection with the slaying, on the charge of murder.

"I have nothing, absolutely nothing to conceal," said Mrs. Clark. "Cowan was a friend of the family. The only times I was alone with him was on one or two occasions when he drove me from my home in Hillside to Elizabeth to pay electric light bills.

"I was never in any road house, cabaret with him. I was never alone with him after dark. There was no love affair."

Cowan had been quoted by the police as saying he had tried to persuade Mrs. Clark to elope with him to Florida and that she had "half promised."

The authorities said this morning that there would be no let-up in the investigation. They were following up the two clues closely. Admissibility was made by William Kent, Mrs. Clark's step-father, that the hammer with which his son-in-law was struck down was his property.

The hammer, however, lessened in importance as the key to solution of the mystery when it was unofficially stated that the finger prints were too blurred to be of value as evidence.

Cowan, according to the police, admitted the ownership of the heavy pair of socks caked with mud. The socks were found in his home.

Cowan was quoted by police as saying he could not account for the mud, but that he had worn the shoes frequently about the country and that they had, consequently become caked.

The soles of the shoes, police said, fitted perfectly the imprints near the Clark garage, discovered after the murder.

Painleve Plan A Capital Levy

Financial Program of Premier Painleve Is Approved by Cabinet—Fate of Cabinet Hangs on Financial Program.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Nov. 7.—The financial program, which is to be submitted to the Chamber of Deputies by Premier Painleve and Minister of the Budget Bonnet, was approved by a cabinet meeting today, sitting under the chairmanship of President Doumergue.

Minister of the Interior Schrameck informed the International News Service that Premier Painleve's financial plan is virtually a capital levy.

"Premier Painleve's plan differs radically from that proposed by M. Caillaux," M. De Monzie, minister of public works, told the International News Service following the cabinet meeting.

"The plan provides for an extraordinary personal tax upon all negotiable securities, compelling every taxpayer to pay a minimum of twenty francs, this sum increasing in accordance to the size of the income of the taxpayer. The full amount is payable in from one to three to four years."

The financial program will be laid before the finance committee in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon and discussion of the plan will be held today and tomorrow. The program will be reported to the chamber at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Premier Painleve hopes that his program will be adopted by the Chamber of Deputies on Tuesday and by the Senate on Wednesday.

Whether these hopes will be fulfilled or not remains to be seen.

The fate of the Painleve cabinet appears to hang on this financial program.

Tax Revolt Is Threatened

Democrats, Insurgents and Republican Independents Oppose Tax Bill in its Present Form—Want Bigger Slash and Oppose Repeal of Publicity Clause.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 7.—With the heart of the new tax bill agreed upon by the house ways and means committee, threat of a tax revolt to be carried to the floors of congress were heard today from the ranks of Democrats, insurgents and Republican independents.

The new bill, as it will be presented to the house in December, will provide a $360,000,000 tax reduction, with about $190,000,000 of this amount slashed from the income taxes. Relief will be given all down the line, including estate taxes, and the house will be asked to repeal the existing publicity clause of the income tax law.

Democratic opposition to the bill in this present form will be based upon charges that the condition of the treasury justifies a $500,000,000 slash in taxes and that the administration is saving another reduction for the congress meeting two years hence, in order to help their party in the following presidential election.

The Democrats will demand far more sweeping reductions all down the line.

From the camp of the Republican independents came announcements of opposition to repeal of the publicity clause and a general complaint that the new bill, as it now stands, gives the "poor man too little relief and the rich man too much relief." This too reflects the opposition of the insurgents.

Democratic opposition to the house committee's measure was voiced by Senator Swanson, Democrat, of Virginia, who declared the reductions should be doubled. He contended the administration was using up surplus to retire the public debt in a 25 year period, whereas heavy federal taxes could be eliminated if the debt retirement period were extended to fifty years.

The Republican Independents, led by Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, attacked the provisions for repeal of the publicity clause and the committee's failure to provide for total income tax exemptions on all incomes up to $5,000. Norris also opposed reduction of estate taxes.

The new bill's principal provisions include normal income tax rates of 1 1/2, 3 and 5 per cent instead of 2, 4 and 6 per cent carried in existing law. Exemptions for single persons would be increased to $1,500 and for married persons to $3,500. Surpluses would start at $10,000 as at present but the maximum rate would be 20 per cent instead of the existing 40 per cent. The 25 per cent flat reduction for earned incomes would be retained and the amount affected raised from $10,000 to a new maximum of $20,000.

In the field of estate taxes, the new bill will slash the maximum rate from 40 to 20 per cent, effective on fortunes above $10,000,000, grand total exemption at present to fortunes below $50,000 and allow credits for estate taxes paid to the various states up to 50 per cent of the federal tax.

The corporation tax of 12 1/2 per cent will be continued in the new bill as will the present capital stock tax of 1 per cent on stock.

Living Standards Here Highest In History

Hoover's Declares America's Commercial Progress Brought Living Standards to Highest Plane in History—Summary of Outstanding Developments.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 7.—America's commercial progress in the past year brought living standards of the country to the highest plane in history, Secretary of Commerce Hoover declared today.

In a review of the year ending June 30, submitted to President Coolidge, Hoover summarized the outstanding developments as follows:

1. Production, consumption, wholesale and retail sales, foreign trade and "real" wages, broke records for normal years.

2. The United States displaced Great Britain as the world's money center having absorbed $1,382,000,000 in foreign securities, compared to $471,940,000 sold in London.

3. Virtually no unemployment.

4. Fast expansion in scientific discovery.

5. Building construction totaled $6,000,000,000, of which 46 per cent went into residential structures.

Farm Situation Better.

Aside from "industrial patches" where progress lagged, as in the New England textile industry, some sections of agriculture and bituminous coal trade, Hoover painted an optimistic picture of the nation's business fabric.

"Farm income reached a greater total in the crop year 1924-1925 than in any other year since 1920-1921," Hoover said. "Weak spots continue, but the general situation is better."

"Aggregate output of all crops during the present year will be about six per cent smaller than last year but this probably will not adversely affect farm communities since it has been offset by advances in agricultural prices."

"As a result of rises in prices of cotton, grains and animal products in the past three years, the agricultural industry has now reached a better adjustment with other industries than at any time since the war."

Building Construction.

Building construction marked the most sensational industrial development with operations exceeding those of the 1923-1924 year by about 20 per cent. Building material prices fell, while the industry has been organized to keep men employed throughout the year.

"Construction, accomplished as well calculated to meet the permanent and growing needs of the nation," he added. "There was no reminder of the extravagance of the boom year of 1920, when industrial plants were enlarged out of proportion to reach the needs."

Hoover said that there is a great task ahead of the country to meet the housing shortage which has not yet been relieved.

The flyer was hailed here as a hero. Thousands gathered to pay him tribute.

Premier Mussolini was one of the first persons to greet De Pinedo.

Recently Grasso came here from Detroit, and went to live with Amori, an old friend to whom he owed $1,000. When Amori asked for payment, a quarrel arose and Grasso is alleged to have drawn a gun, starting the shooting.

5 Battles Impend With Governor

State Legislature and Executive Likely to Clash Over Legislation to Carry Out Constitutional Amendments—Smith Opposes Further Reduction of Income Tax.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 7.—The 1926 Legislature promises to be a long and bitter one with the Republican leaders and Governor Al Smith lined up for a fight to the finish.

Old time political observers at the Capitol say they would not be surprised if the Legislature, which gets under way the first Wednesday in January, should continue until early summer.

Five outstanding battles between the governor and the C. O. P. chiefs are expected to center around:

1—Reorganization of the state government into 21 main departments with the head of each responsible to the governor.

2—Reapportioning the Assembly districts in accordance with the population figures of the state census taken last June.

3—Outlining a grade crossing program to carry out the $300,000,000 bond issue just approved by the voters.

4—Appropriation of $10,000,000 by the Legislature as the first installment of the $10,000,000 bond issue for permanent public improvements.

5—Revising the judiciary system under the constitutional amendment, just adopted. This would permit the lawmakers to increase salaries of judges, including members of the Court of Appeals.

The Republican leaders are certain to make every possible effort to retain control over the state office now held by them. They are expected to fight many of the recommendations which the governor will make in order to carry out the reorganization amendment.

Senator John Knight, Republican whip of the upper house, and Assemblyman Joseph A. McGinnis, who is certain to be re-elected speaker of the lower branch of the Legislature, will marshal the Republican forces in their battle with the governor.

Senator Bernard Downing of New York is slated to succeed Mayor-elect James J. Walker as the Democratic leader of the Senate. Assemblyman Maurice Bloch of New York will again lead the Democratic minority forces in the lower house.

It is almost certain now that the governor will not recommend adoption of the 25 per cent reduction in the state income tax to the 1926 Legislature. The financial condition of the state will not permit it, it was said.

SHOOTING AFFAIR OVER DEBT ENDS IN DEATH

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The body of Sam Grasso of 5599 Buck avenue, Detroit, lay in the morgue here today while his friend, Leonard Amori, was in a hospital with a bullet wound in the thigh as the result of a shooting affair over a $1,000 debt last night.

Amori, according to police, admits killing Grasso in the house where they both lived, but declares he did it only after Grasso had wounded him. He grabbed the weapon from the other man, he said and fired at close range.

Recently Grasso came here from Detroit, and went to live with Amori, an old friend to whom he owed $1,000. When Amori asked for payment, a quarrel arose and Grasso is alleged to have drawn a gun, starting the shooting.

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Nov. 7.—Eight persons, one of them a woman, are believed to have drowned in Lake Superior when the barge J. L. Crant, in tow of the steamer Herman Hettler, broke away during Thursday night's gale. News of the wreck was received when the Hettler reached here this morning minus her tow.

Believe Barge Crew Is Lost

Eight Persons Are Believed to Have Drowned in Lake Superior When Barge Broke Away in Gale Thursday Night.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

The Hettler landed here and appealed to coast guards for aid in searching for the crew of the barge. With a slight hope that they might have donned life preservers and survived in the water fifty miles off the coast near Sault Ste Marie.

The barge, according to Captain Hans Hansen of the Herman Hettler, was in tow during a terrific gale and was progressing under sail, when the tow post on the Hettler was torn out with a splintering crash. The lights on the steamer were partly extinguished and a steam pipe broken, filling the vessel with steam. The diving floor was torn from its setting.

The barge foundered the instant the tow post broke, according to the captain, and all efforts to get near the wreck were in vain because of the high seas. The steamer cruised in the district for many hours, fighting the waves at the same time and finally started for the coast to secure aid from coast guards.

The barge is believed to have drifted ashore in a foundered condition and dashed to pieces on the rocks. The only hope held out for the crew of eight, including a woman cook, was the slight chance that they might have survived the waves in heavy clothing and life preservers. A search is being made today in the district the crew is believed to have been thrown into the water.

Complete Barge Contract Here

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

The last barge of the contract of ten, built this season at the Dwyer Brothers' boatyard in this city, for the New York Central Railroad, has been delivered and inspected by Captain Allen F. Pollock, marine inspecting for the railroad company, and found very satisfactory. The New York Central requires the captain to have his family live on the barge of which he has charge and for this reason the cabins are fitted out with all improvements for the comfort of the captain and family.

The company furnishes all the coal required and as drift wood can be picked up at almost any time the matter of securing kindling wood to start the fires is easy. As the company will no doubt build a number of new barges during the next year or two it is hoped that the contracts will be given to Kingston because of the satisfaction given by the boats of the contract just concluded and by the vessels built for the New York Central marine department previously.

"Tuning In"

Good Mother Nature is always "broadcasting" a bountiful "reading of health." But, just as it is necessary in radio, one must "tune in" to get results. Only when the home is completely equipped with modern, sanitary plumbing in bedroom, bathroom, laundry and kitchen is it equipped to "tune in" and enjoy Nature's broadcast of health which is waiting to be brought into the home.

HENRY I (OF DETROIT)

As every schoolboy of the past generation well knew, "Freedom" shrieked when Kosciuszko fell. Just what Freedom did when citizens of Poland publicly expressed the desire to make Henry Ford their country's King is not reported, but possibly she wrapped her toga about her, bowed her head, and philosophically remarked that in these changed and degenerate times an empty stomach is more loudly vocal than the guardians of liberty. Poland has long been associated with the age-old struggle for self-determination against the aggression of more powerful neighbors and has suffered much for that worthy ideal. As a result of the adjustments following the World War long submerged Poland became an independent republic, but its joy in that awaited consummation has been limited, its people having discovered that prosperity is now no less essential to the happiness of a nation than liberty. Poland's economic troubles are very serious and it is hardly to be wondered at that some of its citizens "should pitch upon the business 'wizard' of Detroit as the right sort of dictator to put their country on its feet.

Mr. Ford could do this, by employing both his energies and his dollars, if any outsider could. But we may be sure he regards the proposition as a joke and does not prize the honor as highly as those desirous to offer it would expect. If, however, the offer is actually made and he should astonish the world by accepting, it would be worth traveling thousands of miles to see the gorgeous and stately festivities attending the coronation of Henry I (of Detroit). All the serio-comic spectacles of opera bouffe would be forever eclipsed.

HOHENZOLLERN WEALTH.

In response to seemingly popular demand in the Allied countries at the end of the World War it was proposed either to "hang the Kaiser" or confine him on some remote and inhospitable St. Helena. It is a far cry from that to the concluded negotiations between the former Kaiser and the Prussian government over Hohenzollern property which makes him the richest German if not the richest man in Europe. He is even to retain as a personal possession one of the finest of his many palaces and will be secure in the ownership of a fortune of $300,000,000, from which his annual income will be nearly two million dollars. He will hold for himself and his heirs huge estates and vast forests, which, after an ordinary revolution and the setting up of a republic of the usual sort, would naturally be expected to revert to the German government for the benefit of the people.

This settlement, following previous indications, will more than tend to convince observers in the outside world that the heart of the German people is still with the monarchy and that the republic was a concession to outside demand rather than a free choice of the majority. Otherwise, although the former Kaiser might be liberally pensioned, the vast Hohenzollern property acquired through generations of taxation would be confiscated and returned to the people who, in the ordinary republican point of view, are the rightful owners. This formal acknowledgment of the right of the deposed Hohenzollerns to immense riches is a significant revelation of what appears to be real German sentiment.

Reed Taibbe of Brooklyn found a lighted bomb in the hallway of the tenement in which she lived, seized it and ran with it to the kitchen and dropped it in the sink. Not until then did she find time to scream and give the alarm, which sent 32 persons rushing wildly to the street to escape the terrible explosion already started. A "bree medal" is presented for the plucky girl, but the people whose lives she saved were more substantial reward.

Tengst Hsieh, who was introduced as a "Chinese Roomer," told an audience in Menckel, N. J., the other day that there were bandits in the country in one day than there is in all China, with its 400,000,000 population, in a week. He explained that in his homeland the convicted bandit is deprived of his head in the market place, which naturally limits the number of hold-ups.

Though the Chinese invented gunpowder as well as the umbrella, the Germans recently celebrated only the introduction of the latter into Europe. But naturally the German taste for gunpowder is not what it was in the days of the Krupps and the Kaiser.

THYROID AND SURGERY.

The number of people you see with enlarged necks—goitres, has perhaps interested you as to the cause of this annoying condition. In fact the disfigurement is the reason that most sufferers seek their physicians. You know by this time that the lack of iodine is the original cause of most of these cases. This may be due to an actual lack of iodine in the system because the food eaten doesn't contain enough iodine, or it may be due to the fact that the need for iodine in a particular individual is greater than the supply.

For instance in growing girls of the age of twelve to fourteen, as they approach womanhood, these lumps enlarge, because so much of the thyroid secretion is required for growth and development at this particular age. Again in fevers, in infections of any kind, all the processes of the body are working at a tremendous rate to fight for the safety of the body, and at this time also the thyroid gland becomes enlarged.

This swelling of certain parts of the gland takes up the room where the manufacture of the secretion takes place, and so there is not enough of the secretion manufactured for the needs of the body. When the girl emerges into womanhood, or the fever or infection passes away, the thyroid gland may come back to normal again in every way.

Sometimes of course too much damage has been done, and an extra supply of iodine is given by the physician to make up for the destruction of the cells that make the secretion.

Now this is all simple enough as regards the ordinary goitre. You can see that aside from the appearance of the lump there is nothing to worry about.

However you have seen cases where in addition to the enlargement in the neck, there was the bulging of the eyes, and extreme nervousness. This condition is felt to be due to the fact that the thyroid gland doesn't manufacture the proper kind of juice. Either, the juice is harmful in itself, or it hasn't the power to regulate or "steady" the body processes.

It is in these serious cases that the thyroid or a part of it is removed. Thus all enlarged thyroids do not need surgery.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

DUNMORE IS BORN AGAIN.

On November 7, 1775, Lord Dunmore, royal governor of Virginia, placed that colony under martial law. He summoned all persons capable of bearing arms to his standard on penalty of being proclaimed traitors and offered freedom to the servants and slaves of revolutionary leaders if they would join him. But he had done very much the same thing before, and Virginia had failed to respond. Martial law, or something much like it, was already in effect on November 7 and its administration was in the hands of the patriotic militia. Dunmore's sphere of influence had by now been restricted almost exclusively to Norfolk, his ships off Norfolk, and the area within reach of their guns.

None the less, if you wanted to be a Tory in Virginia in those days, you could advertise yourself as such by signing this oath of allegiance of Dunmore's authorship:

"Whereas a set of factious men under the names of Committees, Conventions and Congresses have violently and under various pretexts usurped the legislative and executive powers of government and are thereby endeavoring to overturn our Constitution and have incurred Guilt of Actual Rebellion against our most gracious Sovereign, I do therefore abjure all their Authority, and solemnly promise in the presence of Almighty God to bear faith and true Allegiance to his sacred Majesty George 3d and will to the utmost of my powers and ability support, maintain and defend his Crown and dignity against all traitorous attempts and conspiracies whatsoever. So help me God."

Late in September grenadiers and marines from Dunmore's ships had raided a printing shop at Norfolk and carried away its type and presses because it had been publishing revolutionary pamphlets. The patriot headquarters at Williamsburg had expressed displeasure that the people of Norfolk had not resisted the raiders more vigorously,—forgetful apparently, that the grenadiers and marines were supported by the guns on their ships. This impatience at Williamsburg, together with almost daily reports of patriot militia activity and the unbending attitude of the colony's leading men, should have been warning enough to Dunmore that he had no paper war on his hands and that the day of proclamations and the like was past. He at last realized this when his proclamation of martial law fell flat, and news that numerous Tory troops were on their way to aid him now heartened him for his next move.

ST. JOSEPH'S PARTY WAS BIG SUCCESS.

The general card party given by the women of St. Joseph's Church to the people of the parish and the general public on Wednesday evening, was a tremendous success in every way. It was particularly successful in the matter of sociability. There were 64 tables of card players and many were present who did not play.

All present were hugely entertained by the two boy orchestras—The Stending Boys' orchestra with their friend Jerry Lehr playing the violin, and James Castor's orchestra of boys. All of the musicians were seventh and eighth grade boys and girls, but they demonstrated thorough knowledge of dance music and received no end of applause.

The hall looked pretty with many flowers from the Burgwin conservatories. Another appreciated feature of home talent was the refreshments, some ninety delicious home-made cakes being cut for the serving of refreshments. The party was a great financial success and a fine sum of money will be turned over to the Sisters for Christmas cheer and educational work.

City Hospital Women Workers

The plan for the work of the Kingston City Hospital Auxiliary for the coming year is through the forming of committees among the members. These committees have been chosen carefully with a view to distributing the various branches of the work among the women best fitted to do it. Every woman whose name appears in this connection must feel the importance of giving a small portion of her time and ability to carry along the work of a hospital which ranks among the most important of this city's institutions. By serving willingly the truth of the old adage will be manifest "Many hands make light work."

The executive committee consists of the officers and twenty additional members. It shapes the policies of the organization and determines on all important actions of the auxiliary. Attendance at meetings is its principal duty.

The committees are as follows:

Predigy Died Early

Two hundred years ago, on June 27, 1725, died, if contemporary records are to be believed, a four-year-old child who surely holds the record for infant precocity, says the London Post. A few hours after Christian Heinecker (he was a little German) came into the world he spoke, and in ten months could converse on most subjects. By the time he was thirteen months old the Bible was an open book to him. At the end of two and a half years he could answer any question dealing with history and geography, and then turned his attention to languages. He learned to speak Latin and French fluently, but his feeble constitution broke down under the strain, and little Christian's "crowded hour" was at an end.

Claims Auto Tax Null and Void

Secretary Mellon's Claim That Federal Aid Justifies Automobile Excise Tax Is Declared Null and Void by A. A. A. Spokesman.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—Continuation of the Federal Aid policy of the government on the same scale as heretofore and repeal of the entire excise tax structure on motor vehicles were the outstanding features of a vigorous plea presented to the House Ways and Means Committee by the American Automobile Association in connection with the current hearings on the new revenue bill.

The automobile owners' plea for relief from the Federal Excise Tax burden, amounting at present to more than $130,000,000 a year—and to $864,000,000 since 1917—was made to the Ways and Means Committee by Oscar J. Brown of Syracuse, chairman of the Legislative Board of the A. A. A.

Objections to Class Levy. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's contention that Federal Aid to roads justifies continuation of the excise tax on passenger cars was declared wholly untenable by the A. A. A. spokesman who adduced legal and Constitutional reasons why Congress cannot impose a special class levy to be expended for the general good of the country.

"The secretary's stand," he said, "is weak and clearly unfair to the motorists. His theory that it is a Federal function to levy direct taxes for special benefits is illegal as well as impractical."

"The Federal Aid Act was passed by Congress in 1916 as a measure for the general good of the nation whereas the Excise Tax was passed in 1917 as a specific measure to meet specific war needs and it was never the intent of Congress that confusion should arise between the Federal Aid principle, to which the government has committed itself, and this tax."

Why Not Make Other Levies. "The Excise Tax or any other Federal tax levied against a class is justified only to the extent that the revenues are to be expended for the general public welfare. Congress itself has refused to recognize any other theory. If it had, then we might properly ask why appropriations for Federal aid up to June 30, 1925, were only $493,000,000 and excise taxes collected were $864,000,000, or nearly double. We might further ask why it is that Congress does not make a special levy on ships for the huge sums it spends annually in river and harbor improvement."

"Congress might just as well charge a special fee or tax for admission to our public buildings or for the use of our public libraries. To be consistent it should also tax the railroads heavily for the huge profits they have received from the original grants of 158,000,000 acres of land. It should also tax as a class the railroads for having established for them an Interstate Commerce Commission; the manufacturer and the distributor for special support of the Department of Commerce; the farmer for having a Department of Agriculture; and the Indian oil operator and miner for the Department of the Interior. Each fulfills a federal function but benefits directly only certain classes."

Complete System in 5 Years. "You should also consider the fact that it will not take more than five years at the present rate of construction, according to estimates of the Bureau of Public Roads, to complete the national system. There is then an unappropriated balance to the credit of American motorists for federal highway construction of nearly $400,000,000. Congress is therefore doubly obligated to do away with the tax immediately."

The A. A. A. spokesman warned against the tendency to make Federal Aid a sectional issue. "Federal Aid for roads," he said, "is not a sectional matter. The road problems of the west do not differ in principle one iota from the road problems of the east. The issue is truly national as it affects transportation, business progress and defense in the wider aspect."

These Old Costumes Were Worn by Smartly Attired Travelers From Abroad. The First is a Callot Model. Although at first glance some of this year's coats may seem to be as simple in effect as the coats of foregoing winters, a closer inspection reveals that even the most simple have achieved their apparent simplicity through a complicated system of cutting and fitting. And then, of course, the majority are very obviously elaborate and ingenious, a matter of thorough and thorough design for the downtown dress-maker.

A glimpse of various trimming effects seen when some of our best-dressed citizens returned from Paris, will give an idea of the variety and charm possible. Two coats, which are being used almost exclusively for sports coats and steamer coats, are usually trimmed with leather forming the pockets and collar, or facing the front opening. Silver or gold kid often outlines the seams, of which there are plenty, in this season of soft seams and inverted pleats. And then the leather itself is often decorated—stenciled in fantastic motifs or cut out and faced with color.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. A 3 year size requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. If pocket is made of contrasting material, it will require 1/4 yard 9 inches wide.

ment of Interior. Each fulfills a federal function but benefits directly only certain classes.

Complete System in 5 Years. "You should also consider the fact that it will not take more than five years at the present rate of construction, according to estimates of the Bureau of Public Roads, to complete the national system. ## THAT INTEREST IN COSTUME JEWELRY IS KEENER THAN EVER.

From the choker, unflattering to many women, to the long chain choker—nearly long enough to trip over, is one of the leaps fashion has successfully made this season. There is a transition also from the luster of pearls to the glitter of diamonds—which is the aftermath of the over-popularity of pearls.

During the war, society laid away its diamonds, and pearls became the gauge of elegance; now, with the hot polio wearing pearls as big as robin's eggs, out come the diamonds, and, after having been 'arrested' add their brilliancy to an already brilliant season.

In costume jewelry, rhinestones make for brilliancy, and when combined with pearls these replicas of real jewels are really lovely. The newest hats have such ornaments. Jade is also deemed smart, and pearls, if in new arrangements, are still being worn, to some extent, as for instance, in the graduated strands—a type exploited by Molyneux.

It has come to pass that the mannequins of the couture houses also launch costume jewelry ideas. Patou carved jade, using it to stab scarfs and brooches. Crystals and jet—a combination which seems rather nature—is another Fairchild novelty.

Future of the Pig
The duchess of Northumberland's description of the Genesee hog, "remarkably tall, slender and long legged, all black, with their ears hanging down," suggests that the old Irish pig and the "razor backed haw" of the southern states were once a universal type, says the London Post. The Chinese were the first to domesticate the pig as well as to roast him, and every pig in the world today has some Chinese blood in him. The pig's physical adaptability to environment is unsurpassed. A famous biologist has stated that he would undertake in fifty generations to breed a pig that could outrun any greyhound. In New Zealand the swine pig is already considered a practical possibility, and a two-year-old pig weighing more than half a ton has been raised.

Black braided patches, separated by interesting lines of black wire braid, cover almost the entire skirt section of a Lanolin model of ribbed black woolen cloth. Another coat was remarkable for the weave of the material—it was a silk-and-wool, the width-wise rib patterned in such a way that the effect was of lengthwise wavy stripes.

Black and brown, in combination with gray, were noticed more often than might have been expected otherwise. In a year given over so enthusiastically to color.

Community Social Meetings Popular

The Farm and Home Bureau Social Community meetings, scheduled for the coming week as follows:

Stone Ridge, at Grange Hall, Monday, November 9.
Hurley, at Church Hall, Tuesday, November 10.
West Hurley, at Church Hall, Wednesday, November 11.
Gardner, at Odd Fellows' Hall, Thursday, November 12.
Accord, at Community Hall, Friday, November 13.
Asbury, at Grange Hall, Saturday, November 14.

With all of these meetings in rapid succession Farm and Home Bureau members and friends will not lack for plenty of entertainment. The play, "Early Ohio and Rhode Island Reds," which is being given by local talent in each community, is proving a big hit with the capacity audiences turning out to greet each production. During the past week Walkill-Shawangunk, Ulster and New Paltz have put on exceptionally clever acts. It begins to look as if the judges are to have a real job to decide which community puts it across the best. The winner will receive possession of a silver cup and will repeat the play at the annual banquet on December 2.

All the friends of the organization are very cordially invited to attend one or all of the meetings.

New Paltz Scored Hit

The New Paltz Farm and Home Bureau Community meeting held in the Grange Hall on Wednesday, November 4, proved one of the most successful affairs held so far. The two hundred members and friends who came out to greet their home talent folks in the play "Early Ohio and Rhode Island Reds," were more than pleased with the exceptionally fine entertainment provided. The play which in itself is a very clever sketch was greatly enlarged upon by the New Paltz cast. It seems the original author might get some excellent points from the genius who revised it for the New Paltz production.

Those who had part in the acting were the Misses Lape, Kortright and Griffith and the Messrs. Henry and Leonard DuBols. Miss Griffith acted as director. Additional entertainment was furnished by R. K. Newton who led the community singing, several piano solos by Sherman Storrs and a whistling solo by Mrs. Wicks. Sandwiches and coffee were served.

by the New Paltz Home Bureau. Dancing completed the very enjoyable affair.

ROUNDOUT PRESBYTERIAN HUNTLERS' ENTERTAIN.

The entertainment given by the Hunters' Class of the Roundout Presbyterian Bible School Friday evening was a big success in every respect, and the large audience thoroughly enjoyed every minute of the program. The class had as their guests the older boys and girls of the Industrial Home. The program started promptly at eight o'clock and consisted of splendid musical numbers of the Jazzy Syncopators consisting of Clarence Hearn, piano; Fredrick Broadie, violin; Clifford Secor, cornet and C. Schornheimer, saxophone. The young men were forced to respond to many encores so thoroughly did the audience enjoy their playing. George Williams, accompanied by Miss Irene Varga, rendered a violin solo and was forced to respond to an encore. Fred Van Deusen, the local magician, then entertained with feats in prestidigitation and the program was brought to a close by Z. Melik who demonstrated his ability by giving a half hour of rapidly drawn sketch pictures. Refreshments were served at the end of the program and a social hour enjoyed by all.

At The Rosendale Bijou. "Classified," a screen version of the widely read story by Edna Ferber and which is now enjoying an enthusiastic run in the famous New York City will begin an engagement at the Bijou, Rosendale, on Sunday night. Corinne Griffith plays the role of a flapper in this picture. The cast includes Jack Mullan, Ward Crane, Charles Murray, Edythe Chapman, George Sidney and other capable screen players.

Shoots 235 Pound Deer. Ernest Howard of 89 Elmendorf street while hunting in the vicinity of Wittenberg early in the week brought down a 8-point buck. The deer tipped the scales at 235 pounds.

OURSELVES AND INDUSTRY

Big Producers and Small Producers

By E. E. Lincoln and W. O. Scroggs.

One frequently hears a good deal of loose talk about "big business" and "monopoly." However, it is literally true that probably not 1 per cent of the manufacturing and trading concerns in the United States could by any stretch of the imagination be called "big." There are very few establishments which produce more than a very small percentage of the total output of a particular industry. The business of competition during recent years has made it increasingly difficult for any business, whether large or small, to survive unless it performs a real service to society. There must be good reasons, therefore, why some producers are large and others small.

Big Producers and Small Producers

When the owner of an automobile wants a few repairs made on his car he does not ship it back to the factory. That would be expensive and would deprive him of the use of the car for several weeks. What he does is to drive around to a garage, a place that is altogether different from the one in which the car was made. Where there is one man employed in the garage, there are a thousand or more at work in the factory. There is a reason why the factory is large and why the repair shop is small. Our cheapest and most widely used automobile is made in a group of establishments employing over 100,000 workmen and producing about 7,000 cars a day. Suppose that instead of one company making 7,000 cars a day there were a thousand independent producers turning out seven cars each per day. Everyone can see at once that the small establishments would not be able to manufacture cars so cheaply as the large one.

1. The big plant can use highly improved machinery which the smaller plants cannot afford to buy.

2. It can buy materials in larger quantities and, therefore, at better prices.

3. These materials and also the finished products can be shipped in carload lots, with a saving in freight rates.

4. Through constant experiments and scientific planning, impossible in a small factory, improved methods and processes can be developed, leading to lower costs and ultimately lower prices to the consumer.

5. The larger plant, by employing large numbers of men, can place each worker in the job for which he is best fitted; his labor can thus be directed most effectively, with a resulting increase in real wages.

In these various ways the big producer may enjoy an advantage over the smaller one. On the other hand, if the big automobile plant undertook to repair cars instead of to make new ones, it would be at a disadvantage as compared with the small shop. In repair work no two jobs are exactly alike, and so the operations cannot be systematized as in the factory. It is also necessary for repair shops to be conveniently near the car owners, and consequently there are many small shops scattered all over the country, instead of one large central plant.

We see, then, that for some sorts of work the small establishment is best, while for others the big factory seems to have come to stay. The knitting mill of today has made useless the long needles that our grandmothers used to handle so skillfully, but nobody would think of establishing a factory to darn socks. That is still a small-scale job, to be done in the household.

Sometimes we find the same sort of work performed equally well by both large and small establishments. In our cities the great department stores and the small retail shops exist side by side, and both may enjoy a satisfactory trade. Evidently the small merchant is rendering the community a useful service, or he would not be able to face the competition of his big neighbor.

When we see great industrial concerns developing, like the Ford Motor Company or the United States Steel Corporation, we may be sure that there is some good reason for their growth. They could not expand and prosper in their highly competitive business unless they were efficient. That is, they must render the same service as their competitors at a lower price, or they must give better service at the same price.

In like manner, where small industrial establishments are the prevailing type, there must be sound reasons for them also. They may render some specialized or more personal service, impossible in larger concerns, or their operations may be of such a nature that extensive machinery is unnecessary. Local conditions also frequently influence the size of an industry.

The size of a business, therefore, is something that usually takes care of itself. In every line of business competition and the demands of the consumer eventually determine which type is to survive, and whether the factories and units of management shall be large or small, or whether there is a place for both large and small plants in the same industry.
